

Creative Project Manager (m/f)

PreviewLabs is a company specialized in the development of prototypes for video games. Our customers are international game developers, game start-ups, and research institutions, who use these prototypes to evaluate, improve and pitch game concepts.

As we are expanding our team, we are looking for a project manager. Your responsibility would be to overview game prototyping projects from start to end, including:

- Conversations with the client to understand their vision, while actively recommending ideas and asking the right questions to help shape the client's vision if needed.
- Writing out project proposals (PDDs – Prototype Design Documents).
- Working with our programmers to obtain estimations.
- Reviewing prototypes as they're under development, ensuring they meet our quality standards and the client's vision, while keeping an eye on the time frame.
- Tuning the prototypes in the best possible way.
- Writing out various insights and recommendations gained during the prototyping process.

Requirements:

- At least 3 years of project management experience.
- Passion for game prototyping or game development.
- If you look at existing games, you're never short of ideas on how they could be improved.
- Fluency in English, and being able to write with style are crucial skills for this position.
- An understanding of the different steps taken during game development projects.
- You're able to work both independently and as a team player.
- You're a gamer and have already played through a variety of video games.

Pluses:

- Experience with game testing
- Experience with game prototyping
- Experience with version control systems such as SVN or Perforce
- Interest in participating in sales-related tasks, such as networking with potential customers at game industry events and parties.
- Notions about programming or programming experience.

Practical Information:

- The job will take place on-site at our location in Wetteren, Belgium.
- The candidate can start in the next 2-3 months.

We offer a long term contract at an attractive salary package.

To apply for this position, you can contact us through our contact form at <http://www.previewlabs.com/contact>

More information about PreviewLabs can be found at <http://www.previewlabs.com>